

0.0.1 Fault percipients

He who causes it to be known otherwise, when there exists one's self in another way;
deceives just like a cheat, for him that has been made use of by theft.

“What one does indeed, just that one should say.
What one does not do, that one should not say.
For the wise clearly know, those who say what they do not do.”

Surely not merely by what is spoken here,
nor by listening alone;
is one able to advance, on that which is the steady path of effort, by which the wise, exercisers of jhana, are liberated from Mara's bondage.

Indeed the wise act not
