1. Thus was heard by me. At one time the Auspicious One was dwelling at Savatthi in Jeta's Grove, Anathapindika's Park. At that place the Auspicious One addressed the bhikkhus: "Bhikkhus." "Bhante," those bhikkhus replied to the Auspicious One. The Auspicious One said this:

2. "To what extent, O bhikkhus, should a bhikkhu who is thoroughly investigating, rightly investigate for the destruction of all suffering?" The Auspicious One O Bhante, is the root of the Dhamma for us, the Auspicious One is the guide, the Auspicious One is the refuge. Certainly, please let the meaning of this statement be only evident to the Auspicious One. Having heard of this [from] the Auspicious One, the bhikkhus will bear it in mind."

3. "Well then, O bhikkhus, listen and do mind it well. I will speak."

4. "Yes Bhante." Those bhikkhus replied to the Auspicious One. The Auspicious One said this:

5. "This, O bhikkhus, is how a bhikkhu who is thoroughly investigating, investigates: The diverse and numerous kinds of sufferings which arise here in the world [including] old age and death, what is this suffering's source, what is its origin, from what is it born, from what

38. Bhikkhus, if a person entrenched in ignorance activates a meritorious activity, consciousness fares on to the meritorious; if he activates a demeritorious activity, consciousness fares on to the demeritorious; if he activates an imperturbable activity, consciousness fares on to the imperturbable.

39. But from the time, O bhikkhus, a bhikkhu's ignorance has been abandoned and noble knowledge has arisen, from the fading away of ignorance, from the arising of noble knowledge, he neither activates a meritorious activity, nor activates a demeritorious activity, nor activates an imperturbable activity. Not activating, not intending, he does not undertake anything in the world. Not undertaking, he is not perturbed. Not perturbed, he definitely attains parinibbana by himself. He wisely understands: "Destroyed is birth, lived is the life of purity, done is what had to be done, there is nothing further [to do] for thusness."

40. If he is feeling a pleasant feeling, he wisely understands: "It is impermanent." He wisely understands: "It is not held to." He wisely understands: "It is not delighted in." If he is feeling a painful feeling, he wisely understands: "It is impermanent." He wisely understands: "It is not held to." He wisely understands: "It is not delighted in.” If he is feeling a neither painful nor pleasant feeling, he wisely understands: “It is impermanent.” He wisely understands: “It is not held to.” He wisely understands: “It is not delighted in.”

41. If he is feeling a pleasant feeling, he feels it detached. If he is feeling a painful feeling, he feels it detached. If he is feeling a neither painful nor pleasant feeling, he feels it detached.

42. Feeling a feeling limited to the body, he wisely understands: “I feel a feeling limited to the body.” Feeling a feeling limited to life, he wisely understands: “I feel a feeling limited to life.” He wisely understands: “With the body’s breakup, following the exhaustion of life, all that is felt, not being delighted in, will become cool right here. Bodily remains will be left.”

43. Just as, O bhikkhus, a man, having pulled out a hot clay pot from the potter’s oven, would leave it to stand on the ground. Whatever is heat there, that would simply dissipate. The clay pot would be left. So too, O bhikkhus, a bhikkhu feeling a feeling limited to the body, wisely understands: “I feel a feeling limited to the body.” Feeling a feeling limited to life, he wisely understands: “I feel a feeling limited to life.” He wisely understands: “With the body’s breakup, following the exhaustion of life, all the is felt, not being delighted in, will become cool right here as bodily remains.”
