

0.0.1 Striving

1. There are, O bhikkhus, these four right strivings. Which four?
2. Here, O bhikkhus, for the non-arising of unarisen evil, unwholesome dhammas, a bhikkhu causes desire to be born, endeavors, initiates effort, asserts the mind and strives.
3. For the abandoning of arisen evil, unwholesome dhammas, he causes desire to be born, endeavors, initiates effort, asserts the mind and strives.
4. For the arising of unarisen wholesome dhammas, he causes desire to be born, endeavors, initiates effort, asserts the mind and strives.
5. For the persistence, non confusion, increasing, full enculturation, maturation and completion of arisen wholesome dhammas, he causes desire to be born, endeavors, initiates effort, asserts the mind and strives.
6. “These, O bhikkhus, are the four right strivings.”

 “Those who strive rightly,
 have overpowered Mara’s realm;
 they are independent,
 gone beyond the fear of birth and old age.
