1. “A Dhamma exposition in its penetrative unfolding, O bhikkhus, I will expound for you. Listen to that and do mind it well, I will speak.” “Yes Bhante,” those bhikkhus replied to the Auspicious One. The Auspicious One said this:

2. And what, O bhikkhus, is the Dhamma exposition in its penetrative unfolding.

3. Sensual pleasures, O bhikkhus, should be known. The source and origin of sensual pleasures should be known. The diversity of sensual pleasures should be known. The results of sensual pleasures should be known.

55. Birth is suffering; also old age is suffering; also sickness is suffering; also death is suffering; also sorrow; lamentation; physical suffering; mental suffering and despair are suffering; also not to gain what one wishes is suffering. In brief, the five khandhas of appropriation are suffering.

56. And what, O bhikkhus, is the source and origin of suffering? Thirsting, O bhikkhus, is the source and origin of suffering.

57. And what, O bhikkhus, is the diversity of suffering? There is, O bhikkhus, suffering that is extreme; there is suffering that is slight; there is suffering that fades away slowly, there is suffering that fades away quickly. This, O bhikkhus, is called the diversity of suffering.

58. And what, O bhikkhus, are the results of suffering? Here, O bhikkhus, a certain person overpowered by suffering, with his mind overwhelmed by it, grieves, becomes distressed, laments, wails beating his breast, falls into confusion. Yet another person overpowered by suffering, with his mind overwhelmed by it, embarks on a search outside [thinking:] “Who wisely understands a thing or two for the cessation

Suffering, O bhikkhus, ripens in bewilderment or ripens in a search, I say.

59. And what, O bhikkhus,
is the cessation of suffering:
With the cessation of thirsting, O bhikkhus, there is the cessation of suffering.

60. It is just this very noble eightfold path that leads to the cessation of suffering.
That is: right view, right
thought, right speech, right
action, right livelihood, right
effort, right mindfulness,
right samadhi.
