

0.0.1 A Building with a Peaked Roof

1. Indeed, O bhikkhus, he who might say thus: “I, not having made the breakthrough to the noble truth of suffering as it has come to be, not having made the breakthrough to the noble truth of the origination of suffering as it has come to be, not having made the breakthrough to the noble truth of the cessation of suffering as it has come to be, not having made the breakthrough to the noble truth of the path leading to the cessation of suffering as it has come to be, I will rightly make an end of suffering,” this possibility is not to be found. Just as, O bhikkhus, he who might say thus: “I not having made the lower house of a building with a peaked roof, I will put on the upper-most house,” this possibility is not to be found. So too, O bhikkhus, he who might say thus: “I, not having made the breakthrough to the noble truth of suffering as it has come to be, not having made the breakthrough to the noble truth of the origination of suffering as it has come to be, not having made the breakthrough to the noble truth of the cessation of suffering as it has come to be, not having made the breakthrough to the noble truth of the path leading to the cessation of suffering as it has come to be, I will rightly make an end of suffering,” this possibility is not to be found.

2. But, O bhikkhus, he who might say thus: “I, having made the breakthrough to the noble truth of suffering as it has come to be, having made the breakthrough to the noble truth of the origination of suffering as it
