1. Thus was heard by me. At one time the Auspicious One was dwelling at Savatthi in Jeta's Grove, Anathapindikā's Park. At that time in king Pasenadi of Kosala's kingdom, there was a bandit named Angulimala, who was cruel, bloody-handed, violent, merciless towards living beings. Villages were made decimated villages, towns were made decimated towns, districts were made decimated districts. He, having slayed human beings, having cut off their fingers, wore them as garland. Then in the morning time, the Auspicious One, having dressed, having taken bowl and outer robe, entered Savatthi for alms food. Having wandered in Savatthi for alms food, after his meal, having gone back after alms gathering, he set his dwelling place in order. Having taken bowl and robes, he entered

Indeed on this path, even ten men, even twenty men, even thirty men, even forty men, even fifty men, having entered this path together, have met their death at my hands. his sword and shield, having fastened on his bow and quiver, pursued behind, following the Auspicious One. Then the Auspicious One fashioned such a feat of psychic power that the bandit Angulimala going with all his strength was not capable of catching up with the Auspicious One going at his normal pace. Then this occurred to the bandit Angulimala “It is marvellous indeed, Sir. It is unprecedented indeed, Sir. Formerly I could indeed even run up to an elephant and having attacked it, sieze it. I could even run up to a horse and having attacked it, sieze it. I could even run up to a beast and having attacked it, sieze it. But now, even though I am going with all my strength, I am not able to catch up with this samana.” He said this to the Auspicious One: “Stop, O samana! Stop, O samana!” “I, O Angulimala, have stopped. You stop.”

There, the Auspicious One dwelled at Savatthi in Jeta's Grove, Anāthapindika's Park. At that time, at king Pasenadi of Kosala's door of the inner palace, a great multitude of people, having gathered together, were making a great noise, a loud noise: "O Your Majesty, the bandit named Angulimāla is in your kingdom. By that truth, may you be well and may your offspring be well.” “Yes, O Bhante”, the venerable Angulimala, having replied to Auspicious One, approached that woman. Having approached that woman, he said thus: “Since I was given a noble birth, O sister, I do not recall purposely depriving a living being of life. By that truth, may you be well and may your offspring be well.” So then, that woman became well and her offspring also became well.

15. Then the venerable Angulimala, dwelling alone, withdrawn, vigilant, ardent, resolute, not long entered upon and dwelled in that unsurpassed consummation of the life of purity for the sake of which sons of clansmen justly and rightly go forth from the household life into homelessness, having realized it with his own supreme knowledge in just this very life. He understood: “Destroyed is birth, lived is the life of purity, done is what had to be done, there is no other for thusness.” And the venerable Angulimala became one of the arahants.

having dressed, having taken bowl and outer robe, entered Savatthi for alms food. At that time, some threw stones that landed on the venerable Angulimala's body, others threw sticks that landed on the venerable Angulimala's body, others also threw potsherd that landed on the venerable Angulimala's body. So then the venerable Angulimala, with a broken bowl, with his head cut with blood dripping, with his outer robe torn apart, visited with the Auspicious One. The Auspicious One saw the venerable Angulimala approaching from afar. Having seen, he said this to the venerable Angulimala "You bear it, O Brahmin. You bear it, O Brahmin. You, O Brahmin, are experiencing the results of kamma in this very life, which were it to ripen in hell, you would have roasted for many years, for many hundreds of years, for many thousands of years,
