

0.0.1 Delicate

1. I was delicate, O bhikkhus, supremely delicate, excessively delicate. Indeed at my father's residence, these lotus ponds were built purposely for me. In one entirely white lotuses were planted, in one red lotuses, in one blue lotuses. I, O bhikkhus, did not wear sandalwood that were not from Kasi. My turbans, O bhikkhus, were from Kasi, my jackets were from Kasi, my inner robes were from Kasi, my outer robes were from Kasi. A white parasol, O bhikkhus, was held over me day and night [with the thought]: "Let neither cold, nor heat, nor grass, nor dust, nor dew touch him." For me, O bhikkhus, there were three mansions: one for the cold season, one for the hot season, one for the rainy season. During the four months of the rainy season, O bhikkhus, I amused myself in the rainy season mansion with entirely female musicians without descending to the lower floors of the mansion. And just as, O bhikkhus, at other residences, servants, labourers and employees were offered meal of rice husk porridge accompanied with sour gruel, in exactly the same way, O bhikkhus, at my father's residence, servants, labourers and employees were offered meal of fine rice accompanied with meat.

2. Of me being endowed with such great fortune, O bhikkhus, with such delicacy, it occurred to me: "For the Dhamma-deaf puthuj-

6. Or being intoxicated with health, O bhikkhus, the Dhamma-deaf puthujjana, conducts himself with bad bodily conduct, he conducts himself with bad verbal conduct, he conducts himself with bad mental conduct. He having conducted himself with bad bodily conduct, having conducted himself with bad verbal conduct, having conducted himself with bad mental conduct, with the breakup of the body, after death, he arises in the lower worlds, an unhappy destination, the woeful plane, hell.

8. “Being intoxicated with youth, O bhikkhus, a bhikkhu gives up the training and returns to what is inferior. Or being intoxicated with health, O bhikkhus, a bhikkhu gives up the training and returns to what is inferior. Or being intoxicated with life, O bhikkhus, a bhikkhu gives up the training and returns to what is inferior.”

Liability to sickness, liability to old age, then liability to death;
just so do they exist as is
their nature,
yet the puthujjanas get disgusted.

If I were to be disgusted

nature;
this is not proper,
for me to abide in such a way.

That I dwelling thus,
having known the dham-
