

0.0.1 The Noble Lineages

ariyavaṃsasuttaṃ

1. There are, O bhikkhus, these four noble lineages that are regarded as primordial, long standing, traditional, ancient, faultless, never before been faulted, not being faulted, will not be faulted, not disdained by wise samanas and brahmanas. Which four?

cattārome bhikkhave ariyavaṃsā aggaññā, rataññā, vaṃsaññā, porāṇā, asaṅkiṇṇā, asaṅkiṇṇa-pubbā, na saṅkiyanti, na saṅkiyissanti, appatikuṭṭhā samaṇehi brāhmaṇehi viññūhi. katame cattāro?

2. Here, O bhikkhus, a bhikkhu is contented with any robe whatsoever, and he speaks in praise of contentment with any robe whatsoever, and he does not undertake inappropriate means for gains with robe as a cause. He is not perturbed if he does not gain a robe, and is not bound to the robes that he gains. He makes use of them uninfatuated, unruffled, as one who sees the danger in them, as one who knows the escape from them. Yet, he neither praises himself nor disparages others because of his contentment with any robe whatsoever. He is indeed skillful therein, energetic, contemplative, mindful. This, O bhikkhus, is called a bhikkhu who stands in an ancient, primordial, noble lineage.

3. Furthermore, O bhikkhus, a bhikkhu is contented with any almsfood whatsoever, and he speaks in praise of contentment with any almsfood whatsoever, and he does not undertake inappropriate means for gains with almsfood as a cause. He is not perturbed if he does not gain a almsfood, and is not bound to the almsfood that he gains. 5. Furthermore, O bhikkhus, a bhikkhu delights in enculturation [of the wholesome], is delighted with enculturation [of the wholesome], delights in abandoning [of the unwholesome], is delighted with abandoning [of the unwholesome]. Yet, he neither praises himself nor disparages others because of his delight in enculturation plative, mindful. This, O bhikkhus, is called a bhikkhu who stands in an ancient, primordial, noble lineage.

no paraṃ vambheti. so hi tattha dakkho analaso sompajāno patissato. ayaṃ vuccati bhikkhave bhikkhu porāṇe aggaññe ariyavaṃse ṭhito.

6. These, O bhikkhus, are the four noble lineages that are ragarded as primordial, long standing, traditional, ancient, faultless, never before been faulted, not being faulted, will not be faulted, not disdained by wise samanas and brahmanas.

ime kho bhikkhave cattāro ariyavaṃsā aggaññā, rattaññā, vaṃsaññā, porāṇā. asaṅkiṇṇā. asaṅkiṇṇapubbā, na saṅkiyanti, na saṅkiyissanti. appatikuṭṭhā samaṇehi brāhmaṇehi viññūhi.

7. Moreover, O bhikkhus, for a bhikkhu endowed with these four noble lineages, even if he dwells in the eastern quarter, he conquers discontent, discontent does not conquer him. even if he dwells in the western quarter, he conquers discontent, discontent does not conquer him. even if he dwells in the northern quarter, he conquers discontent, discontent does not conquer him. even if he dwells in the southern quarter, he conquers discontent, discontent does not conquer him. What is the reason for that? Because, O bhikkhus, the wise one is a conquerer of delight and discontent.

imehi ca pana bhikkhave catūhi ariyavaṃsehi sammānāgato bhikkhu puratthimāya cepi disāya viharati, sveva aratim sahati, na taṃ arati sahati. pacchimāya cepi disāya viharati, sveva aratim sahati, na taṃ arati sahati. uttarāya cepi disāya viharati, sveva aratim sahati, na taṃ arati sahati.

dakkhiṇāya cepi disāya viharati, sveva aratiṃ sahati, na taṃ arati sahati. taṃ kissa hetu: aratira-tisaho hi bhikkhave dhīroti.

68. No discontent conquers the hero,
the hero is not vanquished by discontent;
rather, the wise one conquers discontent,
for the wise one is indeed a vanquisher of discontent.

68. nārati sahati vīraṃ,
nārati vīrasaṃhati;
dhīro ca aratiṃ sahati,
dhīro hi aratiṃ saho.

69. What could obstruct the dispeller,
the one divested of all kamma;
just like a big coin of gold from the Jambu River,
who is fit to blame him;
even the devas praise him,
by Brahma too, he is praised.

69. sabbakammavīhāyinaṃ,
panuṇṇaṃ ko nivāraye;
nekkhaṃ jambonadasseva,
ko taṃ ninditumarahati;
devāpi naṃ pasamsanti,
brahmunāpi pasamsitoti.
