

0.0.1 The Noble Lineages

1. There are, O bhikkhus, these four noble lineages that are ragarded as primordial, long standing, traditional, ancient, faultless, never before been faulted, not being faulted, will not be faulted, not disdained by wise samanas and brahmanas. Which four?

2. Here, O bhikkhus, a bhikkhu is contented with any robe whatsoever, and he speaks in praise of contentment with any robe whatsoever, and he does not undertake inappropriate means for gains with robe as a cause. He is not perturbed if he does not gain a robe, and is not bound to the robes that he gains. He makes use of them uninfatuated, unruffled, as one who sees the danger in them, as one who knows the escape from them. Yet, he

ariyavaṃsasuttam

cattārome bhikkhave ariyavaṃsā aggaññā, rattaññā, vaṃsaññā, porāṇā, asaṅkiṇṇā, asaṅkiṇṇapubbā, na saṅkiyanti, na saṅkiyissanti, appatikuṭṭhā samaṇehi brāhmaṇehi viññūhi. kātame cattāro?

idha bhikkhave bhikkhu santuṭṭho hoti¹ itarītareṇa cīvaṇa, itarītaracīvaṇa, itarītaracīvaṇasantuṭṭhiyā ca vaṇaṇavādī. na ca cīvaṇarahetu anesanaṃ appatirūpaṃ āpajjati. aladdhā ca cīvaṇaṃ na paritassati. laddhā ca cīvaṇaṃ agathito² amucchito anajjhāpanno ādīnavadassāvī nissaraṇa-

¹tutṭho - machasam

²agadhito - machasam.

neither praises himself nor disparages others because of his contentment with any robe whatsoever. He is indeed skillful therein, energetic, contemplative, mindful. This, O bhikkhus, is called a bhikkhu who stands in an ancient, primordial, noble lineage.

3. Furthermore, O bhikkhus, a bhikkhu is contented with any almsfood whatsoever, and he speaks in praise of contentment with any almsfood whatsoever, and he does not undertake inappropriate means for gains with almsfood as a cause. He is not perturbed if he does not gain a almsfood, and is not bound to the almsfood that he gains. He makes use of them uninfatuated, unruffled, as one who sees the danger in them, as one who knows the escape from them. Yet, pañño paribhuñjati. tāya va pana itarīta-racīvarasantuṭṭhiyā nevattānukkamseti. no param vambheti. so hi tattha dakkho analaso sampajāno patissato. ayaṃ vucati bhikkhave bhikkhu porāṇe aggaññe ariyavaṃse ṭhito.

puna ca param bhikkhave bhikkhu santuṭṭho hoti itarīta-rena piṇḍapātena, itarītarapiṇḍapātasantuṭṭhiyā ca vaṇṇavādī. na ca piṇḍapāta hetu anesanaṃ appatirūpaṃ āpajjati. aladdhā ca piṇḍapātaṃ na paritassati. laddhā ca piṇḍapātaṃ agathito amucchito anajjhāpanno ādinavadasāvi nissaraṇapañño paribhuñjati. tāya ca pana itarītarapiṇ-

he neither praises himself nor disparages others because of his contentment with any almsfood whatsoever. He is indeed skillful therein, energetic, contemplative, mindful. This, O bhikkhus, is called a bhikkhu who stands in an ancient, primordial, noble lineage.

4. Furthermore, O bhikkhus, a bhikkhu is contented with any lodging whatsoever, and he speaks in praise of contentment with any lodging whatsoever, and he does not undertake inappropriate means for gains with lodging as a cause. He is not perturbed if he does not gain a lodging, and is not bound to the lodging that he gains. He makes use of them uninfatuated, unruffled, as one who sees the danger in them, as one who knows the escape from them. Yet, he neither praises himself nor disparages others

ḍapāta santuṭṭhiyā
nevattānukkamseti.
no param vambheti.
so hi tattha dakkho
analaso sampajāno
patissato. ayaṃ vuc-
cati bhikkhave bhik-
khu porāṇe aggañṇe
ariyavaṃse ʔhito.

puna ca param bhik-
khave bhikkhu san-
tuṭṭho hoti itarīta-
rena senāsanena,
itarītarasenāsa-
santuṭṭhiyā ca vaṇ-
ṇavādī. na ca senā-
sanahetu anesanaṃ
appatirūpaṃ āpaj-
jati. aladdhā ca se-
nāsanam na paritas-
sati. laddhā ca se-
nāsanam agathito
amucchito anajjhā-
panno ādīnavadas-
sāvī nissaraṇapaṇṇo
paribhuñjati. tāya
ca pana itarītarase-
nāsanasantuṭṭhiyā

because of his contentment with any lodging whatsoever. He is indeed skillful therein, energetic, contemplative, mindful. This, O bhikkhus, is called a bhikkhu who stands in an ancient, primordial, noble lineage.

5. Furthermore, O bhikkhus, a bhikkhu delights in enculturation [of the wholesome], is delighted with enculturation [of the wholesome], delights in abandoning [of the unwholesome], is delighted with abandoning [of the unwholesome]. Yet, he neither praises himself nor disparages others because of his delight in enculturation [of the wholesome], is delighted with enculturation [of the wholesome], delight in abandoning [of the unwholesome], is delighted with abandoning [of the unwholesome]. He is indeed skillful therein, ener-nevattānukkamseti. no param vambheti. so hi tattha dakkho analaso sampajāno patissato. ayaṃ vuccati bhikkhave bhikkhu porāṇe aggañṇe ariyavaṃse t̥hito.

puna ca param bhikkhave bhikkhu bhāvanārāmo hoti bhāvanārato, pahānārāmo hoti pahānārato. tāya ca pana bhāvanārāmatāya bhāvanāratiyā pahānārāmatāya pahānāratiyā nevattānukkamseti. no param vambheti. so hi tattha dakkho analaso sampajāno patissato. ayaṃ vuccati bhikkhave bhikkhu porāṇe aggañṇe ariyavaṃse t̥hito.

getic, contemplative, mindful. This, O bhikkhus, is called a bhikkhu who stands in an ancient, primordial, noble lineage.

6. These, O bhikkhus, are the four noble lineages that are regarded as primordial, long standing, traditional, ancient, faultless, never before been faulted, not being faulted, will not be faulted, not disdained by wise samanas and brahmanas.

7. Moreover, O bhikkhus, for a bhikkhu endowed with these four noble lineages, even if he dwells in the eastern quarter, he conquers discontent, discontent does not conquer him. even if he dwells in the western quarter, he conquers discontent, discontent does not conquer him. even if he dwells in the northern quarter, he conquers ime kho bhikkhave cattāro ariyavaṃsā aggaññā, rattaññā, vaṃsaññā, porāṇā. asaṅkiṇṇā. asaṅkiṇṇapubbā, na saṅkiyanti, na saṅkiyisanti. appatikuṭṭhā samaṇehi brāhmaṇehi viññūhi.

imehi ca pana bhikkhave catūhi ariyavaṃsehi samannāgato bhikkhu puratthimāya cepi disāya viharati, sveva aratiṃ sahati, na taṃ arati sahati. pacchimāya cepi disāya viharati, sveva aratiṃ sahati, na taṃ arati sahati. uttarāya cepi disāya vi-discontent, discontent does not conquer him. even if he dwells in the southern quarter, he conquers discontent, discontent does not conquer him. What is the reason for that? Because, O bhikkhus, the wise one is a conquerer of delight and discontent.

68. No discontent conquers the hero,
the hero is not vanquished
by discontent;
rather, the wise one conquers discontent,
for the wise one is indeed a vanquisher of discontent.

69. What could obstruct
the dispeller,
the one divested of all
kamma;
just like a big coin of
gold from the Jambu
River,
who is fit to blame him;
even the devas praise
him,

harati, sveva aratiṃ
sahati, na taṃ arati
sahati. dakkhiṇāya
cepi disāya viharati,
sveva aratiṃ sahati,
na taṃ arati sahati.
taṃ kissa hetu: aratiratisaho hi bhikkhave dhīroti.

68. nārati sahati vī-
raṃ,
nārati vīrasaṃhati;
dhīro ca aratiṃ sa-
hati,
dhīro hi aratiṃ saho.

69. sabbakammavihā-
yinaṃ,
panuṇṇaṃ ko nivā-
raye;
nekkhaṃ jambonadas-
seva,
ko taṃ ninditumara-
hati;
devāpi naṃ pasaṃ-
santi,

by Brahma too, he is
praised.

brahmunāpi paṣaṃsi-
toti.

