

0.0.1 Consolation

1. Friend Sāriputta, “one who has gained consolation, one who has gained consolation,” it is said. “To what extent, O friend Sāriputta, is there really one who has gained consolation?” From the time, O friend, a bhikkhu wisely understands as it has come to be the arising, the extinction, the gratification, the liability and the going out of the six domains for contact, it is really to that extent, O friend, that he is “one who has gained consolation.” “But friend, is there a path, is there a path to tread for the realization of this consolation?” “In fact, O friend, there is a path, there is a path to tread for the realization of this consolation.”

2. “But what, O friend, is this path? What is the path

That is: right view, right thought, right speech, right action, right livelihood, right effort, right mindfulness, right samadhi. This, O friend, is the very path, this is the path to tread for the realization of this consolation.” “What an auspicious path, O friend? An auspicious path to tread for the realization of this consolation. It is enough, friend Sāriputta, to be vigilant”
