

0.0.1 The Self Chapter (excerpt)

attavaggo (excerpt)

One truly is the protector of oneself,
Indeed who else could the protector be? 160
Being well tamed just by oneself, one gains the protector that is hard to gain.

attā hi attano nātho,
kōhi nātho paro siyā; 160
attanā'va sudantena,
nāthaṃ labhati dullabhaṃ.

Indeed the evil done by oneself,
self borne, self-begotten; 161
crushes that foolish one,
as a diamond to a gem made of stone.

attanā'va kataṃ pāpaṃ,
attajaṃ attasambhavaṃ; 161
abhimatthati dummedhaṃ, vajiraṃ'vasmamayaṃ maṇiṃ.

