

0.0.1 Walking

1. This indeed was said by the Auspicious One, said by the Arahant, as heard by me.

2. “If while walking, O bhikkhus, a thought of sensual desire or a thought of ill will or a thought of harming arises for a bhikkhu, and if O bhikkhus, that bhikkhu endures it, does not abandon it, does not dispel it, does not annihilate it, does not put it out of existence, then O bhikkhus, a bhikkhu who has come to be thus is called truly devoid of ardor, morally reckless, constantly and continuously lazy, lacking in energy while walking.”

3. “Also if while standing, O bhikkhus, a thought of sensual desire or a thought of ill will or a thought of harming arises for a bhikkhu, and if O bhikkhus, that bhikkhu en-
